VJ PANELLING

Not a new guest to the party, VJ panels have been gracing period homes for decades. But they've recently made a comeback thanks to a modern method of construction for wet area application. Also known as tongue-and-groove or V-groove, these panels are sold as pre-primed MDF boards that can be cut to size. A much cheaper alternative to tiles, they are the perfect way to introduce texture and detail in bathrooms that are otherwise dominated by cold, hard surfaces.
